Ed Soldan topped the Championship round of the 4th Annual Oilmen's Golf Tournament Sunday, becoming the winner for the second consecutive year. A total of 68 trophies and a huge array of merchandise prizes were handed out to the winners in 17 flights.

Good cooperation from the weatherman, except for a brief shower early Sunday morning, helped to make the tournament a great success. Action started off Friday evening with registration and a free round of golf, followed by a smoker. Saturday's two rounds of golf were followed by a steak barbecue and dance, while Sunday began with a smorgasbord breakfast prior to the final rounds. Parking ban for back-to-school

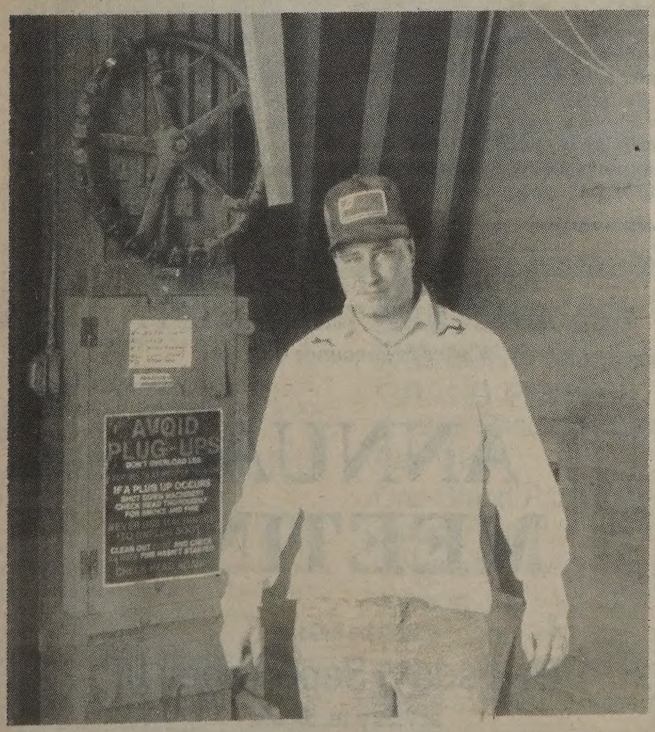
With school starting early next week, the Town of Elk Point has implemented new parking restrictions, which when added to those already in effect, should result in less traffic congestion and increased pedestrian safety in the school area.

Under the new regulations, vehicle parking is completely restricted on the west side of 50 Street between 55 Avenue and the lane north of 51 Avenue, which includes the entire east side of the Elementary School grounds. Parking is still permitted on the east side of that street.

Motorists are reminded that vehicle parking is also restricted on the west side of 51 Street from north of the high school to north of the arena parking lot, and on both sides of 51 Street from 52 Avenue to the north end of the high school.

Parking lots are located at the south end of F.G. Miller High School and on the west side of the Community Services Centre. There is also parking for teachers and parents at the east side of the Elementary School, on the school grounds.

Better visibility for both motorists and pedestrians is the aim of the Town in putting these restrictions in force, so those attending the schools may arrive there safely.



NEW MANAGER FOR ELK POINT U.G.G. — Tim Kubista, formerly of Irma, Alberta, is the new manager of the Elk Point United Grain Growers elevator. Kubista replaces Paul Ewasiuk, who retired at the end of the 1986—87 crop year. The newcomer, with his wife and three children, is busy getting settled in their new home. Welcome to Elk Point!

Chamber plans for fall activities

Elk Point Chamber of Commerce discussed various plans for upcoming activities at their August 19 meeting, which had only 9 members in attendance.

A fall business promotion was suggested, and has been passed on to the appropriate committee for study. Attendance at two upcoming conferences was also suggested.

The need for a phoning committee to remind members of upcoming meetings was noted, with Allan Frankiw and Larry Demchuk volunteering to see this task is attended to.

A lack of involvement in the Chamber by new businesses in town was noted by President Ed Buck who would like to encourage the newcomers to give the Chamber the benefit of their input and ideas. Buck also feels that more representatives of oil related businesses should attend the meetings.

Further study of a road to be built linking the Murphy Oil installation with Bonnyville is slated for the next Chamber meeting September 2, at 12:00 noon.

Janice McCaffrey, who "has given Elk Point more ink" publicity wise through her involvement in national and international racewalking competitions, will be recognized by the Chamber for her outstanding achievements, and will be thanked for helping to put Elk Point on the map.

Both President Buck and Ed Gregoraschuk of the Government Liaison Committee were pleased with the outcome of the July 31 meeting with Recreation and Parks Minister Norm Weiss in Heinsburg. Gregoraschuk noted that the community's concerns were "well taken" by the Minister.

Council appoints new board members

New members were added to two municipal boards at Monday's meeting of Elk Point Town Council. Dr. B.G. Kleeberger and Councillor Alvina Schuhmacher were added to the Recreation and Cultural Board, which has been expanded to include four members from the general public and three from Council. The appointment of Laura MacKay to the Library Board to fill the existing vacancy was ratified.

Public Works matters before Council included approval of a $253,314.78 progress payment to Border Paving on the street upgrading program for work completed by the end of July. Council also approved payment of a backlog of overtime wages to the Superintendent of Public Works.

A problem with drainage of runoff from the roof of F.G. Miller High School was noted, with Council agreeing to permit the County of St. Paul to run a drain line from the downspout into the sewer main located in the parking lot south of the school if they desire to do so.

Issuance of a final acceptance certificate for the Borger subdivision was approved, with Council agreeing that the Town would accept an appropriate amount of gravel in lieu of Borger's gravelling the lane at the northern extremity of the subdivision.

A letter was received from Alberta Transportation, accepting the Town's offer to sell .741 acres along Highway 41 for the sum of $10,000. The Mayor and Administrator will execute the necessary documents to complete the sale.

Bylaw 472/87, regarding sidewalk local improvements, underwent careful scrutiny, following the receipt of an objection to the assessment of $1.21 per frontage foot per year. After much discussion, the bylaw was given the final two readings and was passed. A written response to the objection will be sent to the ratepayer in question, explaining the decision to retain the status of a local improvement for the construction.

Council denied requests for a concession on the machinery and equipment assessment, or on municipal taxes levied on Elk Point Truss Ltd. since July 1, 1979, and also a request from the owner of a highway commercial lot bordered by residential lots to adjust taxes and assessment on the lot.

Accreditation exam for hospital

The entire operation of Elk Point Municipal Hospital, from the housekeeping details to the Hospital Board, was under scrutiny last week, as Dr. L.O. Bradley, M.D., of the Canadian Council of Hospital Accreditation gave it a thorough examination.

Dr. Bradley, now in his 40th year of examining hospitals from coast to coast, checked every sector of the staff, equipment, records and physical plant against its own set of criteria during the day long session. He said that some larger hospitals take as many as three examiners as long as three days for a similar survey.

Seventy-five percent of Canadian hospitals, housing 90 percent of Canadian hospital beds, are accredited for various periods of time, ranging from one to three years. The length of accreditation is determined by the findings of examinations such as took place in Elk Point, Dr. Bradley noted. A three year accreditation means that the Council of Accreditation feels that the hospital's operation is of sufficient quality that no further checks are needed for that length of time. A two year accreditation means that some areas may need slight improvement, while a one year accreditation indicates that work to resolve some problems should be undertaken before the year is up.

Dr. Bradley called the accreditation examination "a voluntary instrument by which the hospital can look at what...and how they are doing" in the area of quality care giving. The operations of the governing board, medical staff and nursing staff, along with quality assurance and support staff are key points of the examination. Recommendations and suggestions evolve from the examiner's findings, and are part of a report which is sent to the hospital within approximately two to three months after the examination.

One of the greatest satisfactions Dr. Bradley has noted as coming from the accreditations programs is the improvements being seen in recent years in long term care. He added that Elk Point's long term care department is "a very fine one".

Rabies confirmed in Elk Point area

By Karen Reed
Animal Control Officer

With a woman recently being bit by a rabid bat in the Whitney Lake area, the concerns for the safety of Elk Point residents increases.

As animal control person, I have been asked on behalf of the Town Council to please make yourself and your family members aware of the possible danger. A recent photo appeared in the paper showing skunk trap that had been tampered with to make it incapable of serving its purpose. These traps are to catch skunks which wander into town to have their litters and scavenge for food.

I have taken it upon myself to ask for the assistance of Ross Maas, who is very knowledgeable in trapping and has been of great assistance to me because of the large amount of skunks right now. In the first half of August alone we trapped nine skunks.

Mr. Maas feels this is a large number, as in his past years they haven't started moving until September to fatten themselves up prior to hibernation.

To assist us, I ask Elk Point residents to abide by some of the following suggestions to lessen the responsibilities of creating a larger problem than necessary.

- Make sure all garbage can area's are clean with proper containers.
- Do not put out plastic bags filled with garbage or open barrels.
- Inform your children what a skunk trap looks like and reasons for them not to tamper with them.
- Keep cats in, especially at night, to eliminate us wasting our time on resetting the traps for skunks.
- Make sure all your family pets are vaccinated to prevent them from being a victim of the disease and for myself, the distasteful job of having to destroy them.

Animal control is not a really pleasant job but becomes a necessary evil as a town grows. I feel my services have been fairly successful to date and would be more than happy to discuss any queries you may have.

ELK POINT & DISTRICT AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

Wishes to announce that their

ANNUAL MEETING

Will be held on

Thursday, September 10

at 7:30 p.m. Sharp.

A.G. ROSS ARENA, ELK POINT

All members are urgently asked to attend!!

Volunteers--let's celebrate

Volunteers...what would Elk Point do without them? Their numbers are many, their work of countless kinds and their efforts often gain little or no recognition.

F.C.S.S. Director Marnie McCowan has come up with a unique way to celebrate the contributions of volunteers, past, present and future, to the Elk Point district with an evening of entertainment dedicated to the volunteers, and open to the community at large. Everyone is welcome ... please accept this as YOUR invitation!

For this evening, planned for Wednesday, September 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the Elks Hall, not a single volunteer will have to lift a finger. All they will have to do is sit back, relax, and enjoy the exciting talents of the "Leave It To Jane" theatre group (one member of which is former St. Paul resident Tim Yakimec) and later enjoy conversation, refreshments and goodies with their friends and neighbors.

Many of Elk Point's volunteers of the past, and of the present, Mrs. McCowan noted, are senior citizens. To make it easier for the seniors to attend the evening, the Elks Community Van will be making stops at all three seniors' residences before and after the event, and will also pick up seniors at their own homes if they contact the FCSS office at 724-3800 before 4:00 p.m. that day.

Come one, come all -- let's celebrate Elk Point's great group of volunteers!

Know your garbage bylaw

By Ralph Riemer
By Law Enforcement Officer
Town of Elk Point

I ran the following article in November, 1986, but of late I am running into a fair bit of trouble with wrong handling or lack of handling of garbage in numerous cases.

With autumn coming up, more skunks and cats are on the move and they are the big problem when they get into garbage which is not properly contained.

Just to remind one and all of the content of the by-law, I am having the previous insert reprinted, to enlighten residents as to the basic necessities in abiding by the regulations. Kindly take note, and if necessary, respond accordingly.

Bylaw 322 with amending bylaw 434/86 deals with the proper method of packaging garbage and refuse to the satisfaction of garbage disposal units. Let us see how this applies to Residential Garbage.

The first requirement is suitable containers. These will be either metal or plastic containers with lids, which are fly proof and animal proof. They shall be of 'standard garbage container' size, and shall sit on stands 16" to 24" off the ground and held in place by surrounding barriers so that dogs cannot knock them over. All garbage shall be drained and put into plastic bags, then into the above mentioned containers.

The large 45 gallon drums may be used in place of the standard containers providing everything is first put into plastic bags and tied, and a lid is put on the barrel to prevent cats entering it and tearing open the plastic bags.

Always remember that any refuse thrown loosely into a 45 gallon drum will not be picked up. The garbage collectors are strictly forbidden to lift containers of that size and weight.

Also remember, as this will be strictly enforced, that there is to be no burning of any type of refuse in any barrel. Burning is strictly forbidden.

Always remember that any of the above mentioned garbage containers must be placed on your own property, but also in a convenient spot for the garbage removal people.

A few definite don'ts to keep in mind:

1. Don't expect garbage pickup if your refuse is deposited loose in 45 gallon drums.

2. Don't expect pickup of any rocks from your garden or yard, regardless of where they are placed.

3. Don't expect pickup of garden refuse (potato vines, corn husks, vegetable tops, etc.) just because you pile it beside your barrel. These must be compactly bagged or boxed.

4. Don't expect pickup of small trees, large branches, etc. unless cut into lengths of approximately 3' or less, and tightly bundled and tied.

5. Don't expect cats not to jump into barrels and tear bags open if you do not have lids covering them. If bags are torn open, this is then regarded as loose garbage and will not be picked up.

Back to school

Summer has flown. Six days from today boys and girls from kindergarten to Grade 12 will be heading back to the halls of learning for another year, and school bus drivers will be on the road again.

For the rest of us, it will be time to take special precautions: to watch for the flashing lights of a loading or unloading school bus, requiring all motorists from both directions to stop, to keep an eye on the speedometer in the school zones, to watch for youngsters in crosswalks and the school safety patrols who help them on their way. In their excitement, these young scholars may forget to look carefully before they cross the street and it is up to us to make sure that their first day of school is not their last.

New parking restrictions should also be noted and observed. The banning of parking along the west side of 50 Street joins similar bans along the street in front of the arena and between the schools on 51 Street to make a sizeable area free of parked vehicles. This allows parents dropping off children to do so in more safety, and pedestrians and motorists will have a clearer view of each other, thus preventing accidents.

Our school safety patrols did a fine job last year, in their first year of operation. Cooperation from both motorists and pedestrians is needed for these youngsters to perform their duty well, and it is to be hoped that this will again be the case.

Have a good school year, everyone and take care!

Mural watch

By Billie Lynn Milholland

Hi everybody!

The mural has had many visitors again this week; many interesting people from far away and from across the street, with good ideas, information and comments.

Two panels from the mural made a visit to the Agricultural Fair which proved very informative. From people who stopped to look at them on display and watch me paint, I gleaned some threshing pictures, another old catalogue, some old magazines and dozens of old photographs ... all very useful in helping me create accurate and memory stimulating details.

Steve Andrishak has allowed me to photograph many old tins and bottles so that items like the Olde Roger's Golden Syrup Pail and various familiar lard pails, etc., will receive accurate representation.

I am looking for clear cream separator photos, the older the separator the better, but it could be a recent photo. Also a photo of cats licking froth off the pails of skim milk would be very useful.

Thanks again to everyone for their kindness and consideration; for fresh garden cucumbers which I am munching on at this moment, for dragging me off for a coffee when I forget to take a break, for dozens of little kindnesses that keep me human while I lead a life of a peculiar kind of tunnel vision.

As more color gets added and more panels stretch across the wall the past seems to reach out and touch the present. Very exciting down here.

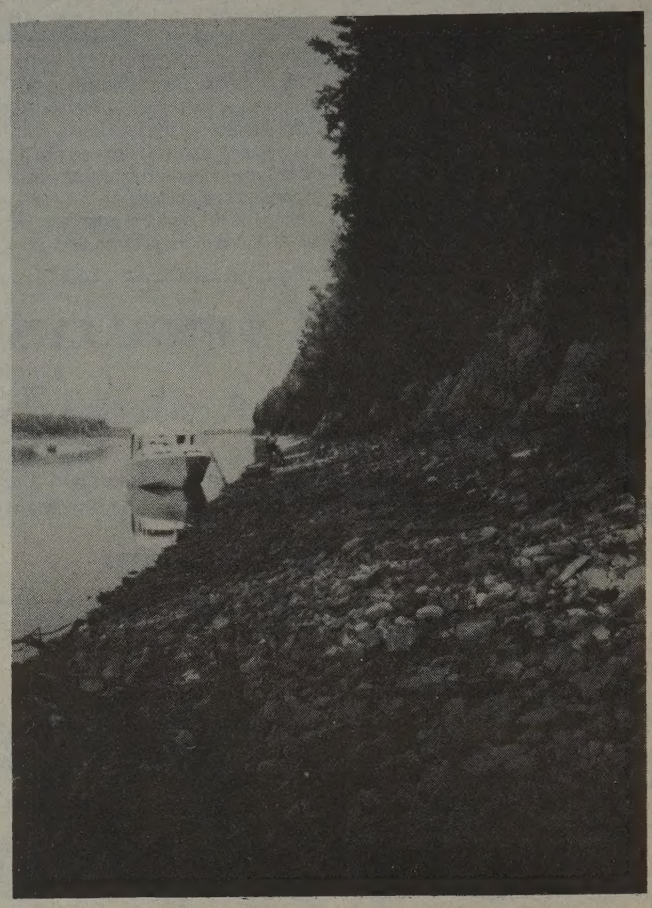
Alberta Trails

By

Irene Magnusson

One of Alberta's water trails



WE HAD LUNCH HERE THE FIRST DAY — And found fringed gentians blooming high over our heads. The water was like glass.

I. Magnusson

After a long night in a noisy motel room (air conditioner) in Fort McMurray, we finally got into the boat, got organized and took off, very slowly — for the water was at an unusually low level and we didn't want to end up stuck in the Snye - getting under way around 9 a.m. Fort Chipewyan, here we come!

The Snye, a narrow body of water attached to the Clearwater River, and which I would term a bay, is used by the small planes as a 'parking lot' and to taxi out for take-off on their ski or pontoons as they head for parts unknown. It also makes a calm backwater for landing and stashing boats.

We worked our way around some sandbars, and reached the Clearwater River, which is as named — clear. After a very short time in this clean calm stream, we issued into the muddy waters of the Athabasca River. Again, the water being very low, we were extremely alert to the shallows and sand bars, which abound, and 1st Mate Aline kept a close watch on the charts Mel had obtained, and we all kept a lookout for the channel markers so kindly supplied by the Coast Guard.

These markers are strategically placed so that as soon as you come to one, you see the next one off in the distance, so you know which way to go next. The whole river is composed of a series of shifting sand or clay bars, where the depth of water varies greatly within a few feet, so we proceeded in a series of zig-zags, following the current and the markers.

These markers are large squares or triangles, in red or green, erected on posts or rocks or trees, along the shores or islands, the one meaning 'go left,' the other 'go right,' and were augmented with floating buoys, in red or green, to show shallows or rocks, etc., or where the channel curves. They were very accurate, and probably checked continuously by the Coast Guard personnel. Our charts, made up last in 1962, were certainly accurate in mapping detail, showing all islands, curves, landmarks, rocks, tree types, etc., but the river changes eternally, so depths must be watched at all times.

Fortunately, Mel has a depth-sounder, and this shows water depth at all times. He sets it to allow us clearance, and it beeps like crazy when we reach that depth. You couldn't ignore it, like I do my oven-timer.

It was a day of beauty, unfathomable blue sky, bouncy white clouds, no wind, and all these fascinating new scenes to see. We went slowly, taking it all in. There were the high dark banks, with their stipes of oil sands, as we had expected, the tall spruce and birch, the willow-covered islands, the sand bars.

Overhead an odd raven stirred, close to shore. There were gulls and shore birds, I couldn't identify. Once or twice we spotted a bald eagle.

The port motor was acting up, so we anchored on a self of very rough shaley rocks, and made lunch while Mel worked on the motor. I made a tiny campfire, while Aline dug out the 'vittals'. It was very sidling, hard to set or walk, but there was a long grey drift log we perched on to eat.

The bank rose about 10 to 15 feet above us, with large trees up there. I couldn't climb it, too crumbly, but could see the plants growing near the top. There were fringed gentian, alpine goldenrod, grass of parnassus, and a few clumps of purple paintbrush - which I have only seen once before, over Twin Lakes, on the Mackenzie Highway. There were also some yellowish button flowers, like a tansy about to open, but they were open. I haven't found these in my plant books yet. From one end of our trip to the other, there was always yellow golden rod and white yarrow somewheres about, on shores, islands, in the woods.

We pushed off and were soon in sight of the huge Syncrude "mountains' where they pour out the oil-stripped sand, into neat long rows, pile on pile, some decked with a few planted trees, some areas coming up in grass. Just beyond we saw the machines, and buildings of the oilsands plant. In all the stories and readings I've been exposed to, I never realized that the oilsands "workings" are north of Fort McMurray, rather than south. I learn.

We stopped later on at a 'sandy' spot, a few feet wide along the river shore. The water was deep, and we soon found the 'sandy' was really 'muddy', and we sank into the smooth, hard-looking beach several inches with each step. I guess you could have stood there and wiggled yourself out of sight. Higher up, it was harder and drier, and we sat and rested for a time, and watched the gulls — only a few — and the swallows overhead.

I climbed up the eight feet or so to the tree-line, and found that it was swamp here too. A million small aspen and alders sprouted like grass from this boggy land.

Another widespread growth we see everywhere is the narrow leaved willow (sandbar willow, the guidebooks call it). Also there is the delta grass, which possibly can grow to eight feet tall, has a wideish leaf blade, and a tassled flower, purply-brown. This grass grows wherever sand and water meet, and can lay a branch of itself down, send out roots from every joint and become a grove of itself in no time flat. I don't know what could eat it, for it's very coarse and tough, but someone could make a fortune off it if a use was found and it could be harvested. There is SO MUCH of it.

Cruising slowly along, we were invaded by horseflies or bulldogs, as my Dad used to call them. When we got tired of swatting and chasing them — they bit viciously — Mel put on a bit of zip and we soon outran them.

We phased under a long high bridge — yes, a bridge! — about as long as the Elk Point Bridge, and two or three times as high — and yes, there is a road fastened to the ends of it. This is near the Ft. McKay Indian Reservations and village, where there are piers and places for the barges to tie and unload. It being about 10 p.m., although still broad daylight, we convinced Mel we'd had enough travel for the day, so came to shore on a sandy beach with fantastic rocks behind it, and anchored for the night.

Since we slept on the boat, there was no problem of finding a campsite, just a quiet nook to drop the anchor, and where we wouldn't get dashed on the rocks if a storm came up.

The kids had kindly fetched along a ladder for me to swarm up and down on, so I didn't have to jump the six feet or so from the deck to land, as they often did. The jump up would have been harder. Next week — the Lake.

Ferguson Flats celebrates 40 years

By Mildren Dunham
Ferguson Flats Correspondent

On Saturday, August 22, the Ferguson Flats Ladies Club celebrated its 40th anniversary. All former and present members were invited to a supper at the Empress Restaurant and later to a social evening at the Ferguson Flats Community Centre. There they had the opportunity to reminisce over old times, view pictures and visit.

Ferguson Flats Farmerettes, as the club was originally named, was initially intended for the members to improve their knitting skills. However, as time went on, they undertook other social and fundraising activities, changed their name to Ferguson Flats Ladies Club, and as such have remained active throughout the many ensuing years. Contributions to various charities, compiling of the Ferguson Flats history book, bazaars, sponsoring of showers and anniversary parties are but a few of the many projects undertaken by this group.

Engraved plaques honoring the original members were presented to Ella Livingston, Audrey Lorenson, Leatha Ockerman, Lilly Swanson, Hazel Hoard, Gwen Nelson, Hilda Smith and Olive Nelson. Only one other original member, Mary Duckett, was unable to attend. In recognition of 40 years of continuous service, engraved desk pens were presented to Olive Nelson and Gwen Nelson.

During the past year, the members had made a beautiful appliqued and autographed butterfly quilt, similar in design to the very first one their club had made and raffled in 1947. This year's quilt was raffled amongst the members only and the lucky winner was Gwen Nelson.

In the past 40 years, a total of 31 ladies have been active members, and the community as a whole has derived many benefits from its many endeavours. At the present time there is a membership of 11 ladies. Coffee and snacks were served to complete the evening. Visitors and members had an enjoyable time. It is sincerely hoped that the dedication and effort by this club will continue for many more years.

ORIGINAL MEMBERS — Of Ferguson Flats Ladies' Club received engraved plaques commemorating forty years of membership in the club.

Dewberry Senior Citizens Pot Luck supper on August 9, which was to have been held at the Lea Park Regional Campsite was changed to the Centre due to inclement weather. Mr. and Mrs. Watley from Washington, U.S.A. were visiting with Winnie Mathison in Vermilion at the time, and accompanied her to the supper. Mr. Watley worked for Ben Timanson's dad many years ago. Approximately 40 had a very enjoyable evening.

Elsie and Neal visited their families in Edmonton then went to Red Deer were they had lunch with Norma Laird. While in Kimberley they enjoyed the "Live Performance" at Fort Steele. The same group have been putting these plays on every summer. They are well worth attending.
